Dugoni School of Dentistry in San Francisco and an Adjunct Faculty Professor at the University of California, San Francisco. He is an associate of the American Board of Trial advocates. Mr. Curley has published several articles on risk management and authored chapters in numerous textbooks on oral surgery, endodontics, and periodontics.

Topic Malpractice and Prevention: Avoiding the Legal Failures Successful risk management is important for today's dental practitioner because "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure." Responding to dental claims is inefficient. The doctor and staff spend time away from patient care and therefore production. Patient dissatisfaction has a negative effect on referrals from the other doctors as well as patients, particularly in this era of social media. This presentation will focus on the tools for claims prevention as well as discuss:

New Standards for Records When a disgruntled patient seeks legal counsel, the first thing the attorney will do before deciding whether to take a case is to request a copy of the would-be doctor's records. The content, quality and breadth, and standards of care created by digital records will determine the direction of the case.

New Standards for Digital Dentistry Automated RCT depth finders, microscopes, laser treatments, digital models and appliances, and cone beam CTs have or will change the standard of care, requiring consideration for their implementation as part of a risk management program.
